

Department of Statistics

Rice University

The Department of Statistics at Rice University has two openings for Visiting Professor at any rank to begin August 2006. Duties for these positions include undergraduate and graduate student teaching. Excellence in teaching and research is required. Teaching responsibilities may be reduced for the successful applicant who qualifies for participation in ongoing research projects within the Department of Statistics or has secured their own external funding.

Please send a letter of application, curriculum vitae and three names of references (including e-mail contact information) to:

Chair, Search Committee
Department of Statistics, MS 138
Rice University
Houston, TX 77251-1892

Please address any e-mail correspondence to stat@stat.rice.edu and include "Search Committee - Visitor" in the subject line.

For more information regarding our department see our webpage statistics.rice.edu. We are currently reviewing applicants for this position, which will remain open until filled. Rice University is an equal opportunity employer.